

Iraqi Refugee Relief

PROJECT PROPOSAL

---

This mass exodus of Iraqis has been described by authorities as “One of the largest and swiftest mass movements of people in the world in recent memory.”

Millions of lives hang in the balance, lacking access to the most basic necessities needed for survival. Food, water, shelter, and medical care are desperately needed.

The following proposal represents our strategic humanitarian response to the Iraqi crisis—a $1 million emergency call to action—designed to save as many innocent lives as possible.

Help for today. Hope for tomorrow.

Need

Extremists who have been fighting to gain control of Syria for the past three years have now infiltrated border cities in Iraq, sparking yet another refugee crisis in the Middle East.

Genocide has bombarded Iraq's eastern territories with brutal and unstoppable force.

As we speak, hundreds of thousands of Iraqis—many of them Christians—are running for their lives at this very moment.

Their survival is largely dependent on the provision of basic, life-saving necessities: food, water, medicine, and emergency medical attention.

Bordering nations are already well over capacity, absorbing nearly 3 million refugees from Syria. There are simply not enough resources to keep these people alive. Our teams are strategically positioned to begin responding to the influx of refugees, but desperately require more funding to accommodate the growing need.

Let our love be loud for our brothers and sisters in the Middle East.

Solution

At a Glance:

World Help has been working extensively in war-torn communities in the Middle East since political uprisings in Syria were sparked in 2011. We have actively distributed life-saving provisions to refugees who were forced to leave everything behind.

In recent days, the refugee crisis has escalated to unprecedented levels, leading us to expand our vision to provide immediate aid and relief to a greater number of incoming refugees than ever before.

We will also address one of the most pressing needs among refugees—the staggering lack of professional medical care—by fully outfitting two mobile medical clinics that will travel directly to areas where help is needed the most.

This strategic plan of action will cost nearly a million dollars over the next four months and has the remarkable capacity to serve 42,000 Iraqis in dire need.

Imagine being dragged out of your home with nothing but the clothes on your back. No money. No precious keepsakes. No food. No car. Just go! You have no rights. No recourse.

Solution

Aid and Relief

“One thousand Iraqi Christians have arrived [to us today] with empty hands and empty stomachs. And we do not have enough to provide them even with food, water, shelter, and basic medical care.”

- Isam Ghattas

As we speak, there are simply not enough resources to keep the current population of refugees alive, much less accommodate the multitudes flooding over the borders every day.

Our vision is to distribute regular aid packages to refugee families containing non-perishable food items, clean water, mattresses and blankets for each family member, and hygiene kits to help curb the spread of disease.

Mobile Medical Clinics

Our partners on the ground report that hundreds of refugees who have escaped genocide are now dying in the streets from preventable medical ailments. With virtually no access to health care professionals of any kind, many are starting to lose hope.

We plan to address this great need by providing two, fully stocked mobile medical clinics that will travel throughout the region to accommodate refugees where they are.

Each medical clinic will be serviced by two medical professionals and several volunteers. Basic medicines, vaccines, and other life-saving resources will be on hand to serve the needs of as many patients as possible.

As genocide sweeps through Iraq and persecution increases in Syria, the need for life-saving supplies is more dire than ever before.

World Help has been responding with humanitarian relief for refugees in the region since the chaos erupted in Syria in 2011.
