

KELLY'S HOUSE

PROJECT FACT SHEET

Kelly's House continues to provide help for today and hope for tomorrow to children with special needs in Guatemala. This home is a huge blessing to dozens of families in the surrounding area, as they now have a place where their children can receive the care and support they desperately need. For years, these families lacked the resources and ability to care for their children with mental and physical handicaps, but Kelly's House was an answer to their prayers.

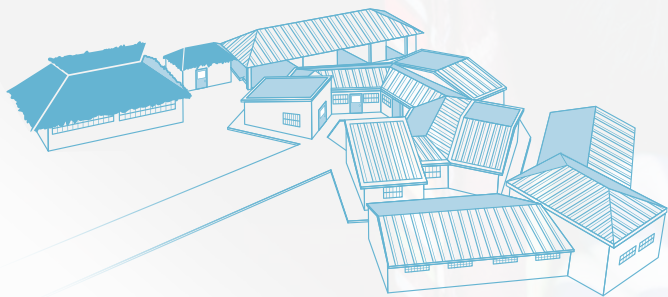

Since it first opened, the care provided here has grown exponentially and many more families want to bring their special-needs children to this facility. In only a few years, they have outgrown their current building and have an urgent need to expand in order to allow for more children and maintain the quality of care they provide.

Currently, 27 children live at Kelly's House, receiving intensive therapy and specialized treatments daily. However, the home cares for approximately 200 children in total, the remainder of which must live with their families and travel to the facility for medical treatment. Yet, many of these children require and are waiting for similar critical attention, but there is no room for them at the center.

In order to meet the needs of these children and their families, Hope of Life plans to expand Kelly's House by building two larger dormitories, allowing at least 50 more children, as well as two caretakers, to live there. Also by building specialized low bunk beds, the healthcare staff will have easier access to move and lift those children who are almost completely bedridden.

Additionally, an expansion to the therapy room will enable the staff to treat multiple children simultaneously. Currently, the space is not big enough to facilitate more than one therapy session at a time. Our partner at Hope of Life shared that one of their greatest joys is to witness a child walk for the first time or be able to move around in a wheelchair on their own. They are eager to have the ability to serve more children and watch them benefit from the care they receive.

*You can help meet this need at Kelly's House and make this life-changing care facility a reality for many more children with special needs in Guatemala. For $180,000, you can help make this expansion happen . . . providing restored hope to children with special needs.

By partnering with us on this project, you will not only be touching the lives of children but entire families as they hope and pray that their sons and daughters receive the specialized care found at Kelly's House.
